MARK TWAIN WAS TALKED HOLLOW.

The Humorist Does Not Expect to Become Overloaded with Conversation Until His Return to the United States.

(Copyright, 1899, by the New York Journal and Advertiser.)

LONDON, July 1.—Mark Twain, talking to the Journal today about his movements, said: "I mean to take a short trip to Norway, and, returning, to pass a few weeks in London. I shall leave for the States in September. I like London, but not enough to stay here."

"I have been interviewed so much and talked to so much at this, that and the other reception that I may claim to feel rather hollow, but I am not ill. I shall give no more interviews on anything until I get home and am full of something to say. I haven't anything to say on general topics, and I certainly won't talk about the Peace Conference. Most of the people who are talking about the outcome of the Conference talk without knowledge, so I keep my mouth closed."

AMERICAN DIGNITARIES AT MISS BURNS'S BRIDAL.

LONDON, July 1.—Lewis Vernon-Harcourt, eldest son of Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, and Miss Mary Ethel Burns, daughter of the late Walter Burns, of New York, for many years head of the banking house of J. S. Morgan & Co., in this city, were married this afternoon at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster. The Bishop of Winchester, Right Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, officiated.

There were ten bridesmaids. The wedding party included Mr. Joseph Choate, the United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Choate; Mr. Henry White, secretary of the United States Embassy, and Mrs. White; Mr. James R. Carter, second secretary of the United States Embassy, and Mrs. Carter, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Lodge. Mr. Choate signed the marriage register. The couple received about seven hundred presents, many of them of great value.

SLOANE STILL LIKED; HIS WAITER IS GONE.

LONDON, July 1.—Sloane's waiter has left London for the Continent, and all public interest in the affair is now dead.

Sloane was well received at the Newmarket races. During the week he has had a fair share of good things, having been three times successful on the first day and twice second, once in a field of seventeen horses.

Little Reiff, too, was more than once placed by the judge. Each of these Americans has again shown that he can more than hold his own with the best English jockeys.

WALES EXPECTS A SHORT TINNERS' STRIKE.

LONDON, July 1.—The Journal's correspondent at Swansea, who is recognized authority on the Welsh tinplate trade, writes: "We don't suppose here that the American tinplate strike, if it opens to-day, will last long."

"It is conjectured in Wales that the stocks of tinplate in America are low, for the American company has recently been behind in its deliveries. A stoppage under these circumstances would largely affect the British industry, which is itself already hard pressed by the demand for prompt deliveries. "There are now 380 British mills at work, and this number could not at present be much augmented, for although there are a few works in Wales and Monmouthshire still idle, yet some mills are at a standstill on contracts in hand because of a scarcity of men."

"A strike stopping the American mills for any length of time would thus bring about a big boom in Wales, but my opinion is that the American company, which has a monopoly of the trade, is not going to allow such a boom to be brought about by the creation of a demand for British tinplate in the United States."

MABEL POWER MARRIED? OH, DEAH, DONCHER KNOW!

(Copyright, 1899, by the New York Journal and Advertiser.)

LONDON, July 1.—The news that Charles E. Loeb, of New York, had brought suit for divorce from his wife, Miss Mabel Power, of the Shaftesbury Theatre company, created great astonishment among the London chappies, who did not know that Miss Power was married. She had been one of the most popular of the dashing American girls who sing nightly in the "Belle of New York" company and stir up even the staid old Londoners with their beauty and chic manners.

Miss Power is one of the six bridesmaids who surround Miss Edna May on the stage, and it is safe to say that no actresses in London receive more attention from men than they. Miss Power's special admirer for a long time has been Lord Critchton, adjutant of the Royal Horse Guards and eldest son of the Earl of Erne. They are often seen together at swaggy restaurants in Piccadilly.

Few persons knew that the young actress had been married, and the most surprised was Lord Critchton. Miss Power will contest the suit vigorously. She said to the Journal that every effort had been made by Mr. Loeb's family to induce her to consent to a divorce, but that she had steadily refused to bring suit herself to grant him the freedom he has endeavored to secure ever since his desertion of her.

Miss Power declared that Mr. Loeb has no grounds whatever for his suit, which is merely an attempt to coerce her. They were married two years ago in New York, when Miss Power was a member of the Casino company. The husband left his wife the day after the wedding on account of objections by his parents to the alliance.

UNITED STATES SENATORS IN ENGLAND RESENT A LIBEL BY THE LONDON PRESS.

John Bull's Preparation for the Invasion by Senators of the United States.

Senators Hanna, Lodge, Hear, Spooner, Jones and Wolcott are in London—and Senator Depew has just gone.

Hanna and Lodge Indignantly Deny That They Inquired as to the Price of Votes in the British Parliament, and Call the Publication an "Outrageous Falsehood"—Depew Laughs at Debates in the Lords and Commons.

(Copyright, 1899, by the New York Journal and Advertiser.)

Senator Hanna.

LONDON, July 1.—The Journal's correspondent has had a talk with Senator Hanna at Claridge's Hotel. The Senator was indignant over the statement in the London press that one of the American Senators who visited the House of Commons in the early part of the week had asked the price of votes.

"Senator Lodge and myself were the only American Senators that had been to the House of Commons this week. The statement, as far as I am concerned, is absolute rot. I am told it is meant for a joke, but it won't be considered a joke in America. The subtle suggestion the paragraph contains is worse than the paragraph itself. No United States Senator would think of making such a statement, whatever might be in his mind."

"Certainly no such thought ever occurred to me while in the House. I wasn't in the gallery more than ten minutes, because I had an appointment with the Right Honorable Bryce."

"An Outrageous Falsehood." "I am personally convinced that Senator Lodge would not have uttered such a remark. It is simply an outrageous falsehood. Had I been in America I should not have thought so much about a newspaper falsehood."

"But when I remember that I am not only a representative of the Senate but of the United States I feel exceedingly indignant that any English paper should be so contemptible as to publish such a gross insult to my honor."

"Yes, I was very much impressed with my visit to the British Parliament. Of course, the whole system of the legislature is different from ours in both houses. "On this side every man is there for business or not at all. The thorough, businesslike methods employed struck me very much. I shall remember with pleasure that short visit."

"How do you regard present feeling between England and America?" "I don't care to speak about that matter, although it is not because I feel less keenly on it than the average Anglo-Saxon."

Effect of the Spanish War. "But for the Spanish war I expect we should still have been proceeding with our commercial rivalry under the old misunderstandings, kept apart by the historical recollections of the revolution for independence and the War of 1812."

"That Spanish war cleared away the haze, England said little, but what she said went to the hearts of all Americans."

"The dispute between America and Spain seemed at one time about to resolve itself into a conflict between the Latin and Anglo-Saxon races. France and Germany were looking on with longing eyes. England saw it all, and victoriously her action said, 'This doesn't concern you, or if it concerns you it concerns me also. Hands off!' and hands were kept off."

"I was glad to see that the responsible organs on both sides of the Atlantic saw the impossibility of an alliance under ordinary circumstances."

"True, we can have an alliance of hearts. I think there can be no quarreling that exists. The day is past when England and the United States can have any serious misunderstanding. It is fortunate it is so."

"How is trade in America?"

The Senator replied: "I think it has again reached its normal state. Confidence is the foundation of all prosperity in all countries. The United States has now secured that confidence."

"Hard Times Are Past." "The years of hard times have passed away. The boom is now reopened." "Is the present Government likely to survive?"

"I have little doubt that McKinley will be re-elected. There's a solid South for free silver. If Bryan can start in with the two-thirds vote of the convention he will have a strong backing, but he has a good deal to reckon with after that."

"Personally, I think the McKinley regime will be continued. I don't think it can be said that McKinley has lost his position with dignity and credit to the nation. He has had a trying time, and has met all difficulties in a dignified, American-like way."

"About that Philippine war, Senator? It's going to cost America a pretty round sum?"

"We Fight for a Principle." "No doubt, but America is like England in that respect. If she has to choose between principle and money, she hesitates not to choose principle. The war was the result, in my judgment, of the Democrats playing too much to politics on the one hand and on the other the Filipino leaders misleading their people."

"However, we must continue it. Drawing back is out of the question. England, I think, fully understands our policy in the East and appreciates our position."

"How are you enjoying your trip to Europe?" "I am getting along just nicely. This day week I go to the Continent. I am to combine the treatment for rheumatism with pleasure, and will visit Switzerland for the after care. I expect to get back to Great Britain in time to run north to Edinburgh."

My great grandfather was a Scotchman, and I should very much like to see the land of my ancestors.

"My present arrangements provide for my leaving England finally September 9."

Senator Depew. "Chamney M. Depew did not seem in his usual good spirits when interviewed by the Journal. He said:

"I find London very dull in spite of the fact that everybody is supposed to live in London just now."

"There's little life, and even between England and America not much is passing at this moment."

"Of course, I've not been able to see so much this time, as I was suddenly called away to Brussels to my son, who was very ill. He is my only son, so it was an important matter to me and shut up everything else."

"Yes, he is better now, and I've brought him back with me. "I am off to the States to-day and shall have to quietly collect my thoughts aboard."

Questioned about the British Parliament, Mr. Depew said: "It is a spectacle to laugh at, your Parliament spending three whole days debating as to whether they should give $27,000 to the clergy."

The Senator laughed as he said it and rushed away.

Senator Lodge. Senator Lodge, interviewed by the Journal on the state-ment complained of by Hanna, said: "The paragraph is an utter falsehood, and is a contemptible one at that. No such remark was made by Senator Hanna or by myself, and we were the only Senators in the House of Commons this week."

HAWAII ONLY WANTS TO BE A TERRITORY. That, Says Mr. Thurston, Is the Complete Hope of His Fellow Islanders.

San Francisco, July 1.—Loring A. Thurston was among the arrivals from Honolulu.

Speaking of conditions existing in the Hawaiian Islands, Mr. Thurston said: "The outlook is very promising. The sugar crop would be undoubtedly the largest ever handled." Mr. Thurston says all is serene in the Islands at present. They are waiting for Congress to act. What the Hawaiians ask for is a territorial government pure and simple.

Mallotca Tannus to Be Sent in Exile. Berlin, July 1.—A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Apia, under date of June 16, says that Mallotca Tannus will shortly be transported to the Fiji Islands.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY AS A FAIRY QUEEN.

Like Gilbert in "Iolanthe" She Lashes the House of Peers.

HER SEX IS INSULTED.

International Council of Women Suffering from Too Many Speakers.

LONDON, July 1.—Naturally, the action of the House of Lords in disqualifying women for election as Aldermen and Councilors has exasperated the members of the International Council of Women, and their meeting at Queen's Hall on Thursday, conducted by the Political Section of the International Council of Women, in support of their political enfranchisement, gave Miss Susan B. Anthony and others a chance to lash those who chose the period of the Women's Council to treat women so contemptuously.

At that meeting a resolution was moved by Mr. Ferdinand F. Begg, Conservative Member of Parliament for the St. Helier Division of Glasgow, and adopted, to the effect that it lies with the United Kingdom and her colonies and the United States to complete the principle of representative institutions and demonstrate to the world that the representations of the people are manifestly incomplete as long as a whole sex is excluded.

There is widespread dissatisfaction with the management of the Council of Women. The value of most of the meetings has been destroyed by lack of proper regulations. Too many persons were invited to read papers, and, consequently, each person has been limited to ten minutes time, which is entirely inadequate for the proper treatment of the subjects, and it is generally felt that the whole time of the conference is being frittered away in disjointed talk of little interest and almost valueless.

Genevieve Ward's paper, on Thursday, attracted a great crowd. Mrs. Kendall presided.

Gilbert Parker was to have addressed the women today on the subject of "Housing Educated Women," but he is ill, and his paper was read by Sidney Low, of the Standard.

Mr. Parker has made a long study of the subject and has abundant evidence of the distressing conditions under which educated working women are living. He has projected a scheme, not philanthropic but practical, by which great buildings, accommodating four hundred people, are to be erected in different parts of London. Before he publicly outlined the scheme today, some financiers offered Mr. Parker half the amount of the cost of the first building. There is little doubt the scheme will be launched shortly.

Yesterday's address by the Duchess of Sutherland on "Women in Journalism" continues to be an exciting topic. The Duchess's remark that "it would be better for women to scrub floors for a living than to write nonsense" is a subject of varied criticism.

SPANISH COUNCILLORS KILLED BY A MURDEROUS MOB. Townspeople Gather Outside the Hall, Fire into It, Killing Three and Wounding Nine Lawmakers.

Barcelona, July 1.—A dispatch from Badalona says that at the opening of the Municipal Council to-day a crowd assembled outside the building and fired on the Councilors. The shots killed three and wounded nine of the Councilors.

Senator Depew Coming Home. Liverpool, July 1.—The Cunard Line steamer Campana, sailing from this port to-day for New York, will have among her passengers Mrs. William Astor, Senator Chamney M. Depew, Jr., and the Earl of Donoughmore. The American Line steamer New York, sailing from Southampton to-day for New York, takes among her passengers Mr. A. Aldice, Second Assistant Secretary of State.

LAST and BEST of breakfast foods

The delicate sweet of Grape Sugar

Grape-Nuts.

At Grocers

A TOOTHsome NOVELTY.

The food expert who invented Grape-Nuts, the pre-digested food, struck a public fancy. This novelty has had a surprisingly rapid sale. Many people do not eat grains for breakfast because they are too often poorly prepared, but Grape-Nuts, being thoroughly cooked and ready for the table, and with a crisp, charming flavor, appeals to the good judgment and taste of all particular people.

Leading grocers sell Grape-Nuts. Made by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Edna May, Phyllis Rankin and now Mabel Power. This is a portrait of Mabel Power. She sang in the Casino here and went to London to play in "The Belle of New York," a musical drama, laden with yellow dust from the aloes, which has an extraordinary effect upon British nobility. Her husband's name is Loeb. The news that Miss Power is Mrs. Loeb surprises many people in London, particularly Lord Critchton.

JAMAICA GETS FAVORS UNDER THE DINGLEY LAW.

Reciprocity Treaty Has Been Concluded and Only Awaits the Approval of the Colonial Authorities

Washington, July 1.—A reciprocity treaty with Jamaica was concluded at the State Department to-day at a conference between Commissioner Kesson, in behalf of the United States, and Mr. Towner, the British Charge d'Affaires.

The Jamaican treaty is now to be forwarded to Kingston for the approval of the colonial authorities, and when this is given the formal signing of the instrument will occur.

The convention is under section 4 of the Dingley tariff law, providing for reciprocity treaties, and is not a mere "arrangement," as provided for by section 3 of the act.

The concessions given to Jamaica differ

AMERICANS IN GERMANY TO CELEBRATE JULY 4.

BERLIN,

July 1.—Dr. Munm von Schwarzenstein, the Luxembourg Minister who is to replace Dr. Von Holleben, temporarily, as German Ambassador at Washington, sails for New York July 4. He dines to-day with Mr. J. R. Jackson, secretary of the United States Embassy.

Dr. John McG. Woodbury, who was sent materially from those allowed the other British West Indian colonies, mainly because of the recent tariff law enacted by Jamaica, which had special application to the United States.

Quick Results—Best Results. Journal's unequalled growth in "Want" advertising—22,364 "Want" ads. gained in June over June last year.

by President McKinley to report on the medico-military organization of the German army; Admiral Erben and Mrs. Erben, and Mr. John Drey have arrived here. Mr. Jackson gave a dinner, Tuesday, in honor of Admiral Erben and Dr. Woodbury.

The Americans in Berlin will celebrate the Fourth of July by a picnic at Grunau, and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will receive during the afternoon.

Elopers Returned to England. William Johnson, keeper of a public house at Nottingham, England, and Mrs. Elizabeth Annable, wife of the keeper of another public house at the same place, with the woman's nine-year-old son Bernard, were sent back to England yesterday on the City of Rome. They arrived May 24 and were arrested on complaint of the British Consulate.
